Eco-lawyer presses Manila Bay cleanup

By Alcuin Papa

AN ENVIRONMENTAL LAWYER WHO WON A landmark case ordering government to clean up Manila Bay will ask the Supreme Court to cite government officials, including six Cabinet members, in contempt and jailed for failing to do their part in the cleanup.

In a motion to be filed today, lawyer and University of the Philippines professor Tony Oposa asked the high court to cite in contempt Interior Secretary Ronaldo Puno, Health Secretary Francisco Duque III, Agriculture Secretary Arthur Yap, Public Works Secretary Hermogenes Ebdane, Budget Secretary Rolando Andaya and Education Secretary Jesli Lapus.

Also facing possible contempt charges are Jejo Alfiado of the Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System, and the heads of the Philippine Coast Guard, Philippine Ports Authority and Maritime Police.

Oposa, who is set to receive the Ramon Magsaysay Award on Aug. 31, said the Supreme Court's decision in December last year ordering the cleanup of Manila Bay directed certain government agencies to inform the high court the steps they have taken to comply with the decision.

"I hope our motion will make these government offices take the Supreme Court decision seriously and to take the rule of law seriously," Oposa yesterday told the Inquirer.

Oposa said the tribunal was entitled to respect. "At least these government officials will be made to explain to the high court itself," he added.

RP bet ranks No. 9 in Miss U online poll

NASSAU, BAHAMAS—THE Philippines' Bianca Manalo ranked No. 9 in the Miss Universe online poll on the eve of the beauty pageant yesterday.

Beauties from Asia and Latin America emerged as popular favorites, hours before the start of the pageant finals held this year in the Bahamas on Sunday evening (Monday morning in Manila).

As of press time yesterday, Miss Indonesia Zivanna Letisha Siregar topped the online poll sponsored by contest officials. Following closely were Miss Brazil Larissa Costa, Miss Vietnam Hoang Yen Vy and Miss Thailand Chutima Durongdej.

Latin American contestants held nine of the 15 top slots in the informal poll, including Peru, Mexico, Ecuador, Guatemala, Venezuela, El Salvador, Colombia and Bolivia.

Reigning Miss Universe Dayana Mendoza hails from Caracas, Venezuela.

Manalo, reigning Binibining Pilipinas-Universe, stands at 5-foot-10, with an advertising degree from Assumption College.

Aquino killing, Miranda bombing: A gory tale of 2 dynasties

By Amando Doronila

ANALYSIS

AS AN IMMEDIATE UPSHOT OF THE tremendous outpouring of popular grief over the death of former President Corazon Aquino, a movement has sprung to draft Sen. Benigno "Noynoy" Aquino III to run for either president or vice president in the May 2010 election.

The movement rides on the crest of the tidal wave of nostalgia for the legacy of public service left by Noynoy's parents—Sen. Benigno "Ninoy" Aquino Jr. and President Cory Aquino.

The country has not witnessed a more massive adulation for any Filipino political dynasty than the Aquino mania that swept the land in the wake of Cory's death.

The undercurrent pushing the draft for Noynoy, however, has opened a rift in the Liberal Party between Sen. Manuel "Mar" Roxas, who is running for president under the LP banner in 2010, and those pushing Noynoy to lead the party in the election.

The nostalgia following Cory Aquino's funeral has thrust a heavy mantle of expectations on Noynoy's shoulders as the heir to the Aquino family legacy—a burden many fear Noynoy might not live up to fulfill.

The death of Cory Aquino on Aug. 1 was followed within three weeks by the 26th anniversary of the assassination of Ninoy Aquino on Aug. 21, 1983.

By sheer coincidence, Aug. 21 was also the 38th anniversary of the grenade bombing of the Liberal Party rally at Plaza Miranda, the Philippines' equivalent of London's Hyde Park.

Cory is a sequel to Ninoy's martyrdom, which set the stage for the "People Power" revolution, and Cory's ascent to the presidency, a trophy that Ninoy sought assiduously but that eluded him.

Following Cory's funeral, a move

'Read-along' reveals faces of leadership

By Kate V. Pedroso
Inquirer Research

THE MANY FACES OF LEADERSHIP—a brave queen, a dishonest mayor and a greedy rajah—captivated the imagination of children during the Inquirer Read-Along session on Saturday.

ABS-CBN president and chief operating officer Charo Santos-Concio took time off from work to read stories of leadership to some 300 children at the Inquirer office in Makati City.

Concio read "Alamat ng Papaya," a story about a queen who died defending her people.

Veteran read-along storytellers Sophia School principal Ann Abacan and Alitaptap president Rich Rodriguez supplied the sound effects for the story that was written by Rene Villanueva and published by Lampara Publishing House.

Earlier, Rodriguez kicked off the Read-Along with a retelling of a popular children's tale "The Pied Piper of

Bending rules for success only in RP, says Mar

By Leila B. Salaverria

FOR HOURS, AT A "TOWN HALL" meeting, Sen. Mar Roxas spoke about the evils of corruption and the importance of sticking to rules in order to get ahead in life—except that in the Philippines, bending the rules is what seems to guarantee success.

"It's a recipe for anarchy," he said.

Roxas told the gathering of businessmen, professionals and residents and students living at upscale Valle Verde IV in Pasig City that he first learned of the importance of observing the rules when, as a boy, he was told by his grandmother about the proper way of cooking rice.

Hardly anyone in the audience raised a question about a hot topic in town: His love affair with Korina Sanchez and their upcoming wedding. Analysts have

Voc school studes to be tested, too

THE GOVERNMENT HAS INCLUDED vocational school students in the random drug testing it is conducting across the country, a Department of Education (DepEd) official said yesterday.

Education Assistant Secretary [illegible] said random drug tests, which resumed with the opening of classes in June, will now be conducted at vocational schools accredited by the Technical Education and Skills Development Authority (Tesda).

"[illegible] high schools before testing students in college or the vocational schools, now we're doing the testing in all of them at the same time," [illegible] said in an interview.

The DepEd and Department of Health (DOH) are about to wrap up random drug testing in the National Capital Region.

"We're almost through with Metro Manila and have only [illegible] schools still to be tested in Quezon City. We'll be doing that in the next [illegible] days," [illegible] said.

"We've finished in [illegible], Ilocos Norte, [illegible] and parts of [illegible]. In a few weeks we'll be in [illegible] and other nearby cities in Luzon," she said.

Detention violates scion's rights, says law expert

By Leila B. Salaverria

THE CONTINUED detention of Luis "Louie" Gonzales, a grandson of former President Elpidio Quirino, amounts to a violation of his rights, according to a former dean of the University of the Philippines College of Law.

Froilan Bacungan, a member of the Philippine Constitution Association, said that since the case against Gonzales for the murder of his stepbrother had been dismissed, there was no reason to hold him in detention. He said the Constitution clearly protects a person's right to liberty.

He pointed out that the bill of rights states that no person shall be deprived of liberty without due process. Those accused of a crime also have rights, he said.

"I suppose Mr. Gonzales should be freed right away… This is a blatant violation of the bill of the rights," Bacungan said at the Kapihan sa Hulo news forum on Saturday.

The Supreme Court recently upheld the order dismissing the charges against Gonzales and his sister, [illegible], in the killing of Gonzales's stepbrother Federico Delgado.

Delgado was stabbed to death in his Manila apartment in March 2007. Gonzales continues to be detained at the National Bureau of Investigation. Manila Regional Trial Court Judge Thelma Medina refused to release him on the grounds that the Supreme Court ruling was "not yet final."

In the same forum, Gonzales's daughter, Isabella, and sister, Ruby Gonzales Meyer, maintained his innocence and appealed for his release.

"My father is innocent. That's all that needs to be said," Isabella said.

She said that her mother, [illegible], a popular singer who is separated from Gonzales, also believes he is not involved in the crime.

Ruby said the Gonzales family was speaking up because they did not want others or people to go through their experience.

"If we don't speak up for this injustice that's happening, everybody, what will happen to basic human rights? … We're doing this out to show that injustice is blatant and this should not be allowed to happen," she said.

In a joint statement distributed to reporters, Isabella and Ruby said they had thought of keeping quiet about the plight of Gonzales and [illegible], but they said that if someone like the two men, who were no longer facing charges, could still remain locked up, "then the same injustice could also be done to ordinary Filipinos."

There are 3 million defective, junk and leaking LPG tanks in circulation and there are 3 million more due for recall and testing
If you have a dilapidated, rusty tank of liquefied petroleum gas in your kitchen, every ticking second could trigger an explosion that could blow up your home. Worse, it could blow up your entire family.
Over the past few years, more than 1,700 fires caused by defective LPG cylinders have burned down homes, razed entire communities, and taken countless lives. These unsafe LPG cylinders, condemned as scraps abroad but imported by profiteers and distributed by unscrupulous LPG refillers and retailers, continue to threaten our homes and our lives.
There are more than three million of these time bombs in millions of Filipino homes. One of them is probably in your kitchen. Another three million need to be checked and tested.
The Senate is fast-tracking the LPG Act now. This initiative follows through House Bill No. 5942 authored by Reps. Rodolfo "Ompong" Plaza and Juan Miguel Arroyo and Senate Bill No. 1187 authored by Senator Mar Roxas, Chair Committee on Trade.
The enactment of the LPG Act of 2009 can make our homes safe from these ticking time bombs in the form of junk, defective and leaking LPG tanks. The measure seeks to regulate the LPG industry by prohibiting acts that undermine the safety of the public and cheat both consumers and the government. It also punishes those who shortchange consumers by underfilling tanks and therefore evade payment of the proper taxes. It also seeks to protect legitimate businesses in the LPG industry.
THE LPG ACT OF 2009 CAN DEFUSE THIS.
WE NEED THE SENATE TO ACT NOW!

Pasay police chief, Senior Supt. Raul Petrasanta, said in a report yesterday that Marlette Laurel and Mary Ann Concepcion, employees of Jazz Jewel and Diamonds at SM Mall of Asia, were manning the establishment at around 3:45 p.m. Saturday when three "decent-looking" women came in.

Initial investigation showed that one of the women—described as wearing a black blouse and black pair of jeans, between 20 and 25 years old, with fair complexion and 4'9" to 4'11" tall—approached Concepcion and asked for about a P1 gold pendant inside a locked glass case.

State banks to bankroll ₱15-B toll road

SMC to control expressway consortium

By Doris C. Dumlao

THE STATE-OWNED DEVELOPMENT BANK of the Philippines and Land Bank of the Philippines are spearheading a syndicate that will bankroll the P15-billion Tarlac-Pangasinan-La Union Toll Expressway project to be majority-controlled by San Miguel Corp.

The financing of toll roads is among the areas that DBP was active in as part of its developmental mandate, DBP president Reynaldo David said.

The 88-kilometer expressway project will extend from La Paz in Tarlac (the end of the Subic-Clark-Tarlac Expressway) to Rosario, La Union.

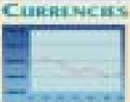

The three-phase project, which is being undertaken through a build-operate-transfer contract between the Department of Public Works and Highways and a private consortium of contractors called Private Infrastructure Development Corp. (PIDC), is expected to be completed by 2013. The first two sections are expected to be finished by May 2010 and January 2011, respectively.

The PIDC consortium is controlled by 18 construction companies, including DM Consunji Inc. and the Lopez-owned First Balfour. The plan was originally for DMCI to take in a new partner and buy the other contractors out. Metro Pacific Investments Corp. also has an option to take over the 10-percent stake held by the Lopezes as part of the deal when it took over the latter's North Luzon Expressway project, although it has

Top 10 fave musical clips

FANS OF THE Disney Channel series "Phineas and Ferb" may vote online for their Top 10 favorite music clips from the show in the global "Phineas and Ferb Musical Cliptastic Countdown."

Viewers may log on to http://www.disney channel.asia.com/ DisneyChannel/programs/phineasand ferb/[illegible] from Sept. [illegible].

Results will be aired on Oct. 17 at 11 a.m.

The series showcases Phineas Flynn and Ferb Fletcher, two stepbrothers who are on the lookout for adventure during their summer holidays with their pet platypus Perry, while their sister Candace attempts to thwart their plans.

The series has featured over 100 original songs including the Emmy-nominated "[illegible]."

It airs Saturdays and Sundays at 9:30 a.m.

courtesy to good customs and traditions."

The case stemmed from Revillame's [illegible] to the [illegible] of the footage showing Aquino's [illegible] on the show's Aug. 3 episode.

That was a show of "arrogance and great disrespect to the Filipino ... tradition of paying respect to the dead," said MTRCB chair Marissa Laguardia in a memorandum sent to the network on Aug. 13.

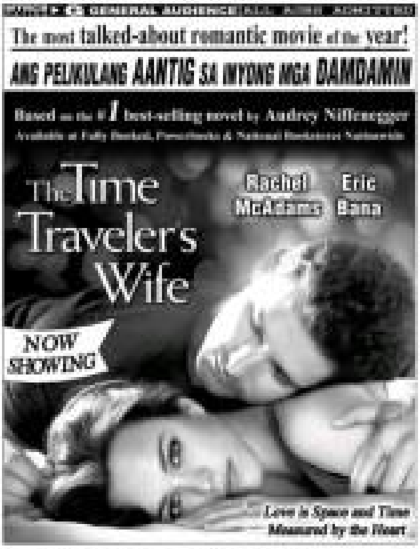

Revillame came to the hearing with [illegible]. ABS-CBN was represented by lawyers [illegible].

During the three-hour hearing, Revillame pointed out that it was management's call, not his, to insert the video. [illegible] told reporters: "When he asked that the insert be removed, he said, he was merely giving a suggestion. He also admitted that [illegible] and that he shouldn't have spoken the way he did."

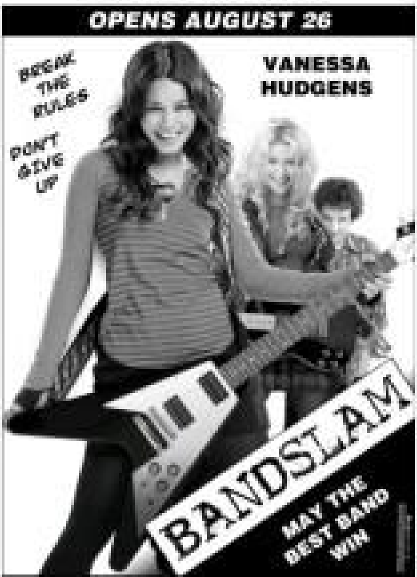

Next step

[illegible] and Jonathan [illegible], MTRCB chief counsel, will submit a consolidated reply affidavit on Aug. 27. "Revillame's party should submit a rejoinder after a week," [illegible] explained. And 10 days later, the committee will render the ruling.

"The meeting was cordial," [illegible] added. "There were no heated arguments. It was points and counterpoints [illegible]."
